

May - 22 - 2153

On the Cover

The wreck of U390 sunk on July 5, 1944 by HMS Tavy and HMS Wanderer using the hedgehog forward firing mortar. Credit: Image provided by MC4, LCL Production, and Sherrell Ocean Services, created with Measutronic's R2Sonic 2024 UHR Multibeam Sonar.

p. 56

Vehicle Tech

32 New Autonomy

Robotics continues to push the envelope offshore.

Instrumentation

44 Acidic Oceans

Expect the Unexpected.

By Kira Coley

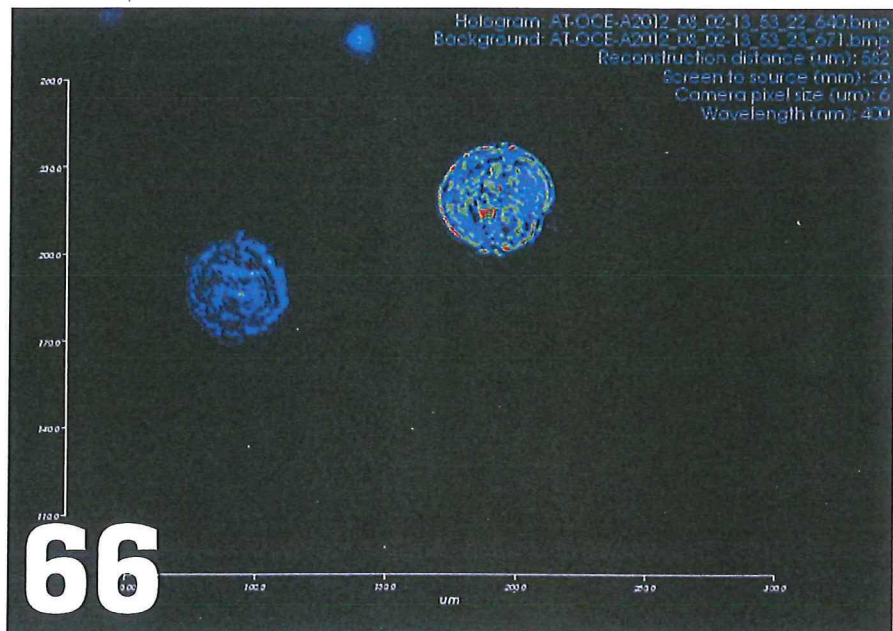

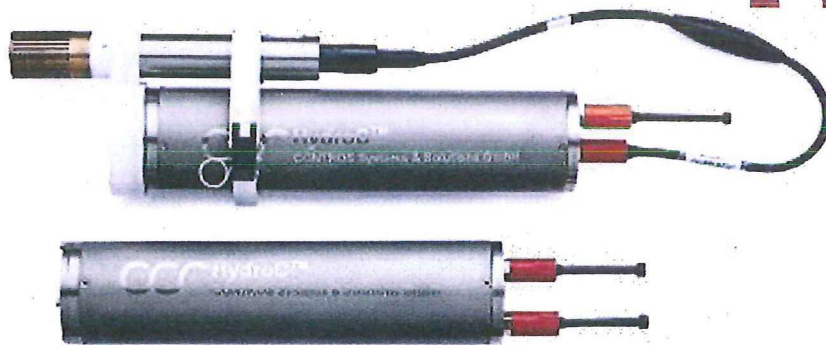

Imaging

66 Clear View

Resolution Optics offers an innovative submersible microscope to 6000m.

By Tom Peters

44

Resolution Optics

September 2014
Contents

Volume 57 • Number 7

Vessels

10 The Fleet is In

Vessels of all shape, size, configuration and use ply the waters in support of subsea initiatives.

10

- 6 Editorial
- 24 Company Profile: SWE
- 66 People & Companies
- 70 Products
- 77 Classifieds
- 79 Ad Index

24

Government Update

18 Rogue Waves

Ever since man has taken vessels onto the seas, mariners have reported encounters with monstrous waves that seem to arise out of nowhere.

By Dennis Bryant

18

Profile

62 High Precision MEMS

Silicon Sensing produces a wide range of single-axis silicon MEMS gyroscope sensors and modules.

By John Wilkins, Silicon Sensing

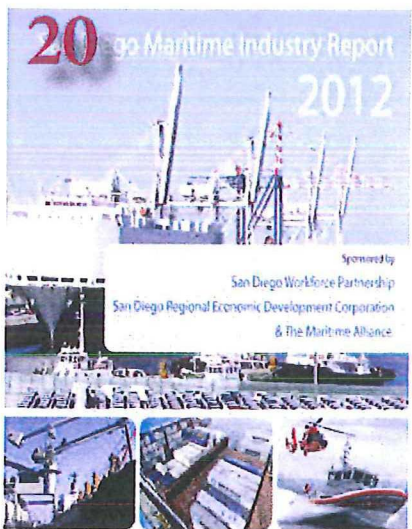

62

Blue Economy

20 San Diego Cluster

The San Diego subsea & maritime cluster is picking up steam and support as its economic impact is quantified.

By Michael B. Jones

20

Ocean Instruments

58 Biofouling Foiled

UV light is being harnessed for biofouling control.

By Jehan Zouak, Chris Bueley, & Pete Reedeker, AML

58

Photo courtesy of Adrian Round, Dir. of Observatory Operations, ONC