EFFECTIVE INEFFICIENCIES THAT TURN SPACE
INTO STORY

PROLOGUE

The Listener, The Memorizer, The Observer

ACT 1: THE PEOPLE

Turning space into story

FOR THE FIRST LONG TIME IT FELT SUPER CHAOTIC AND LIKE A MAZE. I SO CLEARLY REMEMBER WHEN I FIRST GOT HERE AND WAS SHOWN AROUND AND HOW I HAD NO SENSE OF PLACE. NOW IT VERY MUCH FEELS LIKE A HOME, THAT FEELING OF 'OTHERNESS' HAS COMPLETELY LEFT. (...) LIKE THAT PERSON YOU WOULDN'T EXPECT TO LIKE OR BECOME FRIENDS WITH BECAUSE THEY AT FIRST-SIGHT SEEM A BIT OFF AND MAYBE EVEN CRAZY BUT THEN YOU END UP LOVING THEM EXACTLY FOR THEIR IDIOSYNCRASIES."

THE MAZE

WHEN ASKE first arrived, the maze was a world of its own. LABYRINTH OF SPACES It was complicated and

Over time, Aske expanded his world. The box

ISA SCHOKKING
(6 YEARS)

THE BEAST

WHEN ISA first stepped inside, the Beast barely noticed him. It seemed like a being too extraordinary to care for a single person. It wasn't that Isa didn't belong; it was simply that the Beast didn't know him yet and needed to be sure of who this strange newcomer was before it

By the fourth year, it no longer kept Isa at a distance; instead, it slowly started copying him. Each tentacle seemed to reflect his moods, and its skin absorbed pieces of him. Furniture he brought in, colors he painted on its walls, and the music he played all became part of it.

ALESSIO DE SECCHIO (28)
(1,5 YEARS)

"THE ENTROPIST"

"FOR SOME REASON, IT WORKS, BUT NO ONE REALLY KNOWS HOW. (...) IT FOLLOWS THE SECOND LAW OF THERMODYNAMICS: EVERYTHING TENDS TOWARD CHAOS (OR ENTROPY), BUT THAT CHAOS IS WHAT KEEPS THINGS MOVING FORWARD. THE HOUSE DOESN'T FOLLOW STRICT RULES OR A FIXED SYSTEM. THINGS EVOLVE NATURALLY, ADAPTING TO CHANGES OVER TIME."

ALESSIO SAT hunched over his desk, his wild curly hair hanging over his head. He was surrounded by piles of papers and the hum of his old computer. It had been weeks since he had last made any significant progress in his work. As a professor of thermodynamics, he was used to complex equations and theories. But now, the numbers on the page blurred together, REFUSING TO MAKE ANY SENSE.

On the other side Alessio passed the wall with the broken rain pipe. Rainwater was gushing out like a waterfall creating a puddle too broad to jump across.

The only way for him to move forward, was to step into it. So he waded himself through the water in his slippers. For a moment, he felt daunted. A heavy fire burned in his chest. "Are you FIGHTING AGAINST CHAOS?"

"I LIKE THAT THESE SPACES HAVE THEIR OWN PERSONALITIES. (...) THE HOUSE IS KIND OF AN UNPREDICTABLE SHAPESHIFTER... PARTLY BECAUSE OF THE EVERCHANGING PEOPLE THAT LIVE IN IT"

& GABRIEL SANTAMARIA
(3,5 YEARS)

THE HOUSE OF MIRRORS

GABRIEL LIVED not just one life, but three. In the House of mirrors, each one of his rooms was like a portal into an alternate universe. The house, built from REFLECTIONS OF HIMSELF, held these three parts of him, existing in parallel timelines. As he moved between rooms, he stepped into different versions of himself, like a time traveller crossing

Instead of feeling a sense of finality, he felt a surprising sense of WHOLENESS. Because there, on the floor in front of him the glass had fractured into three. The charts

"SOMETIMES I FEEL LIKE BFM IS A SECRET PLACE THAT WE HAVE A SPECIAL KEY FOR (...) IT'S BASICALLY A MOVING MAGICAL CASTLE HELD TOGETHER BY A HEART. WITH A WARM FIRE AND ADAPTIVE PERSONALITY, CREATING DOORS TO NEW PLACES AND ADDING TO ITSELF TO MAKE ROOM FOR NEW INHABITANTS.(...) WITH INITIATIVE AND CARE, ANY PLACE CAN BE REBORN REPURPOSED AND RELOVED"

Her flowers lined the windowsill interspersed with candles, a few framed photos, and, like always, her cat, who had claimed this spot since the day she got adopted. Vita felt like a cat up here too, perched high in her tower, calm and content.

THE CASTLE

She had always believed that it held some kind of magic, a heart locked up in basement she hadn't yet found keeping it alive. She wandered those hallways for over 6 years looking for something like a heavy golden key, with sharp teeth with thin engravings, but she had never found it.

Yet, the castle kept transforming as she lived through its VARIOUS "ERAS." There was the spring when everyone gathered in the garden, sharing pizza on scattered chairs. And then two summers later, the
