being homeless is not only living rough

WHAT DOES THE WORD HOME IMPLY?

'Home is a material dwelling and it is also an affective space, shaped by emotions and feelings of belonging'.

Alison Blunt & Robyn Dowling (2006)

'Home is lived; what home means and how it is materially manifest are continually created and recreated through everyday practices'.

Alison Blunt & Robyn Dowling (2006)

'While homes may be located, it is not the location that is "home". Home is the fusion of a feeling "at home", sense of comfort, belonging, with a particular place'.

Easthope (2004)

'The ideal home is not just a house which offers shelter, or a repository that contains material objects. Apart from its physical protection and market value. Apart from its physical protection and market value, a home is a place where personal and social meaning are grounded'.

Nikos Papastergiadis (1998)

'The home is ongoingly made or imagined as a project which might change or be changed overtime'

S. Pink, K.L. Mackley, R. Morosanu, V. Mitchell, T. Bhamra (2017)

'An "uncanny" experience may occur when one's home is rendered, somehow and in some sense , unfamiliar: one has the experience, in other words, of being in place and "out of place" simultaneously'.

Ken Gelder & Jane Jacobs

'Just as the homely can be rendered as unhomely, unhomely places may become homely'.

Alison Blunt & Robyn Dowling (2006)

'For domestic violence victims, home is a site of abuse'.

L.E. Prestwood (2010)

DEMOLITION OF HERITAGE

PROTESTS

Residents of Tetuán count the popular Neo-Mudejar style buildings lost in the last fifteen years

The Group for the protection of the district's heritage, which already carried out a collaborative census of the buildings of the style in the district to request their protection, now recounts the losses produced since 2008

— In the end they were brought down from the roof: eviction with resistance, police detainees and demolition in La Higuera de Tetuán

Last chance for Bravo Murillo 315, an example of popular neo-Mudéjar in the heart of Tetuán

On Monday the future of the property will be settled in the Commission for the Protection of Historical, Artistic and Natural Heritage (CPPHAN). The Tetouan Heritage Protection Group has appeared in the file requesting the conservation of the façade, which would not alter the buildable land by the promoter

PATRIMONY

Defending heritage against speculation: a fight that spreads through the neighborhoods of Madrid

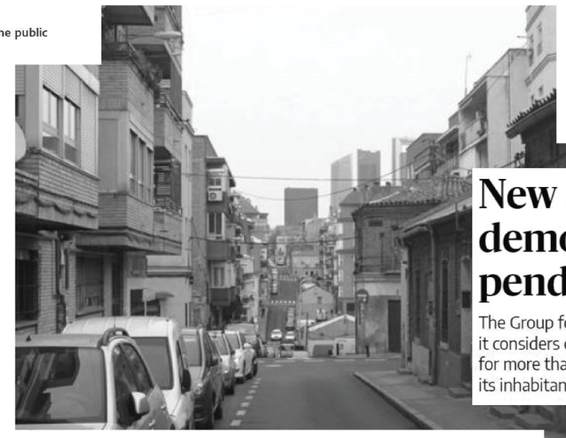

After decades of grievances and demolitions, the neighborhood of the former municipalities annexed to the capital is mobilized to preserve its identity in the face of real estate voracity. The result of the municipal elections will determine the future of fifth centennials such as Torre Arias and Huerta de Mena.

A symbol of popular neo-Mudejar resists: Bravo Murillo 315 will continue to show off its bricks thanks to the neighborhood struggle

The Group for the Protection of the Heritage of Tetuán appeared in the file of the Commission for the Protection of the Historical, Artistic and Natural Heritage (CPPHAN) together with the Cuatro Caminos-Tetuán Neighborhood Association, to request the conservation of the façade of the building. The project has been changed to reintegrate most of the original materials in the new building, which will include a reconstruction of the façade. Demolition work has already started

The residents of Tetuán fight to protect more than 200 Neo-Mudéjar style buildings

The Cuatro Caminos-Tetuán Neighborhood Association has already sent a letter to the Madrid City Council asking for the protection of these houses, which have more than a century of history

New eviction in Tetuán and threat of demolition for a Neo-Mudejar building pending protection

The Group for the protection of Tetuán's heritage included in March the protection of the building, which it considers one of the most interesting examples of popular Neo-Mudejar. The house has been squatted for more than ten years and is known as La Higuera. There is an eviction order issued for October 14 and its inhabitants have summoned to their doors
