Firma N. V. Hellerman | C. A. Hellerman

Op den Bragaweg naast het huis van den heer Hellerman is de europeesche billiken woning nu ook al voor den grond en het ge-lijkt er veel op of de vroegere bewoner — eigenaar daar een steenen huis gaat bouwen. De Bragaweg wordt met den dag beter. Jammer, dat er met zoo weinig systeem ge-bouwd wordt.

Again Hellerman moved back to the East side of the Braga street, next to the Gas building and began trading in firearms and munition. <sup>2</sup>

1894

The first store established on the West side of Braga street is a firearms shop belonging to C.A. Hellerman. In addition to selling weapons, it also sold a variety of horse-drawn carriages, bicycles and reparation workshop for firearms. Later Hellerman, moved to the East side of the Braga street, also in a small bilik house. At that time the land in the street Braga was still cheap, so Hellerman had built shops and sold it to European businessmen, who began to flood the Braga street, in that time also known as Parijs van Java. <sup>1</sup>

1900

1908

C.A. Hellerman sold his shop, which already gained a considerable amount of popularity, to a man named M. v d. Berg. The name of the Firm was still kept under his ownership. <sup>2</sup>

1918

M. v d. Berg then sold the shop to the new owners Hillerbrandt en Pieneman, who then finally moved the shop to the building at the Bragaweg 37 and thus combined it with a car dealership department. <sup>2</sup>

1920 's

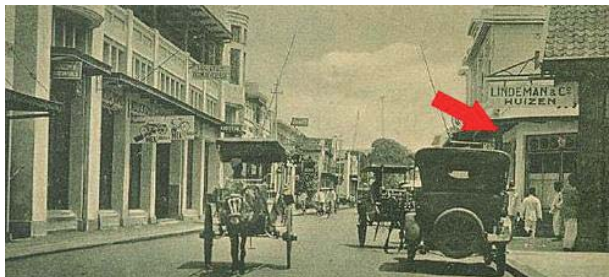

1946

It seems that the buildings in the back of Hellerman shop were there since a long time already. The question is if it was there from the start.

1947

After Japanese occupation and the Revolution, the Indonesian residents slowly returned in the 1950s.

± 1939-1945

C.P.W. Schoemaker had lived in this building during WWII, because it was not possible to stay in his own home.

The last tower collapsed during the day. There were no casualties in this incident, despite the collapse of the buildings falling into roads and sidewalks.

1959
A fire broke out causing half of the building burned out including the Southern tower. When it was renovated, the burning tower was not rebuilt.
