European route of industrial heritage

"Creative tourism is a trip directly oriented towards participation and acquisition of authentic experience, gaining certain knowledge in the field of arts, heritage and particular kind of locations where immediate communication with the local community is possible. Which would allow creating a 'live' culture" (UNESCO, 2006). The primary concepts include the tourist's participation in activities of authentic experience. It also emphasized that the participation of the tourists is equally important as the participation of
