Gedeeltelijke lockdown

Het coronavirus heeft te veel ruimte gekregen om zich te verspreiden. Om corona onder controle te krijgen, is ingrijpen noodzakelijk. Per 14 oktober 22.00 uur gelden daarom de volgende maatregelen:

Heb je klachten?

Blijf thuis.

Laat je testen.

Ben je ook benauwd en/of heb je koorts? Dan moeten alle huisgenoten thuisblijven.

Werk thuis, tenzij het niet anders kan.

Houd 1,5 meter afstand.

Vermijd drukke plekken.

Was vaak je handen.

Hoest en nies in je elleboog.

Draag een mondkapje in publieke binnenruimtes.

Groepen

Binnen: max. 30 personen per ruimte (incl. kinderen t/m 12 jaar). Groep van max. 4 personen of 1 huishouden.

Buiten: groep van max. 4 personen of 1 huishouden.

Thuis

Ontvang max. 3 personen per dag (excl. kinderen t/m 12 jaar).

Volg de regels die gelden voor quarantaine en isolatie.

Vervoer en vrije tijd

Reis zo min mogelijk binnen Nederland en naar het buitenland.

In het ov is het dragen van een mondkapje verplicht.

Problem statement

Hybrid working is here to stay. Yet, many have not reached a consensus on their workplace arrangements.

The pandemic has had a distinct impact on every organization

SMEs remain understudied and it is unclear the preferences and needs of Dutch SMEs in transition to a hybrid workplace

Aim

Main Aim: To acquire an understanding of how SMEs are making a transition to a hybrid workplace

1. Offer knowledge to SMEs that want or are implementing a hybrid workplace strategy.
2. Provide insight into a starting point for managing a transition to a hybrid workplace

Research question

Main question

How are organizational components used by Dutch SMEs transitioning to a hybrid workplace strategy?

Theory

1. What tools are applicable to analyze how Dutch SMEs transitioning to a hybrid workplace strategy? And what are organizational components?
2. How are Dutch SMEs expected to use organizational components transitioning to a hybrid workplace strategy?

Empirical
Research

3. What drivers and barriers do Dutch SMEs encounter transitioning to a hybrid workplace strategy?
4. What differences exist between SME sizes and business categories in transition to a hybrid strategy?
5. Which organizational components are most (under)performing for Dutch SMEs transitioning hybrid workplace strategies?

Background: Alignment

How can we create an understanding of the corporate strategy and real estate performance?

Background: Organizational components

Position

- Understanding internal strengths and weaknesses with the external market.

Purpose

- Understanding the strategy of your business, real estate and human asset

Place

- Location of the office, space requirements before and after strategic shift to a hybrid strategy.

Paradigm

- Uncovering the organizational DNA. The unwritten rules and culture.

Processes

- The activities of the organization – working in the office, working virtually and the interaction between these two.

People

- Generation differences, social distancing, home situation, belonging.
- Support in the physical environment but also the behavioral environment both at the office and virtually.

Performance

- Real estate related, measure examples: cost, efficiency, quality

Productivity

- Output per employee

Background: Alignment

Background: SME

- Defining SME

Size	Number of Employees
micro	Less than 10
Small	Less than 50
medium	Less than 250

- Reusing the Strategic alignment model<sup>1</sup>. Switch IT and real estate
- Characteristics of Dutch SME
  - Proposition of SMEs<sup>2</sup>
  - Strategic alignment negatively relates to the number of employees
  - Strategic alignment negatively related to Real estate. (Smaller real estate, stronger alignment)
  - Strategic alignment is positively related to resource endowment

Research methods: Preliminary followed by main holistic case studies

Method – Case studies criteria

- Case criteria
- Eleven cases selected:
  - Different size SME selection
    - Small: 10-50
    - Medium: 51-100
    - Medium-large: 101-250
- Different categories:
  - Modern business services (consultancy, IT, 3D modeling etc.)
  - Classic business services (finance, law, media etc.)
  - Retail business services

Research methods: Data collection

- Semi-structured interviews
- Interview protocols
- Thematic analysis

Discussion – Four themes

The behavioral environment

- The pandemic influenced SMEs difficulties related to social organizational belonging.
- Many use office-first policies ensure 3-4 days a week at the office
- Increase communication tools to support behavioral environment

Policies vs. behavioral environment

The physical environment

A mixed perceived divide between:

- Office-centric strategy – Investment office focused, little remotely
- Little office adjustments, fully supported remote workplace
- Full support. Strong physical and behavioral environment at the office and virtual.

Office vs. remote workplace

Real estate performance measurements

- An assumption was made that SMEs would have some form of tailored measurement.
- Case studies showed little used performance measurements
- Use of intangible form of measurement “We are a small organization; if we feel that the office has an issue or is overcrowded, we can think of a solution” (Interview)

SME alignment

- Unique characteristics of SMEs – “Smallness” affect in relation to alignment
- Although not all components were utilized, the employees remained positively supported.
- Case studies show a negative relation with people increase and alignment

Findings

Flexibility employee desire

SMEs short-term focused

Financial resource limited

Little in-depth
performance measurement

“Smallness” could be an advantage to create a supportive environment

Main research question

How are organizational components used by Dutch SMEs transitioning to a hybrid workplace strategy?

Conclusion – Answering the main question

- Each organization is unique; Different components weight different for each organization
- Most SMEs were perceived strong in both position and purpose.
- The four remaining Ps people, place, paradigm and processes. Support position and purpose. The people component performed highest in the benchmark.
- Productivity component scored high in the benchmark. An aligned workplace is more easily attainable due to “smallness” of SMEs.

Recommendations

Research take a ways

- The physical environment is essential component of office design, the behavioral environment, more than the physical environment, has most impact on people perceived productivity.
- Small increase in employee support goes a long way compared to reducing costs.
- People-first prioritization of the four input components (These components are closely connected)
- Performance measurements are significant for improving an organization. Even a simple tailored measurement can already form a basis to understanding the real estate and from which improvement could be perceived.
  - Understanding the real estate performance is part of alignment, alignment is not a one-time event.

Recommendation

- The research has an organizational focus
  - Research used a holistic approach with either owners or HR.
  - Embedded case studies would include more depth the research
- Further a quantitative approach should be used to further develop upon the topic and strengthen the validity.
  - The qualitative approach is based on the researcher interpretation.
- Further research is required looking into the applicability of alignment tools to SMEs
