

The Anemone

Just as an anemone provides shelter and anchorage for clownfish in turbulent waters, the Anemone product line anchors solar panels. This product combines the function of ballast with a foundation that allows nature to flourish on a variety of rooftops.

Various additional components can be added onto the base tiles to transform uniform solar fields into diverse climates.

The system is compatible with Sunbeams' existing mounting structure, enabling integration into both current and future solar applications