Representation

Prison should not be a reminder of past behavior and contribute to the image of being wrong.

State of being

Prisoners should be able to perform everyday actions and be normal. They should be allowed to show their ability to be normal.

Interaction

Prisons structures should allow prisoners to act and interact with their surroundings. The architecture should be a frame in which every day live can occur.

Let crime become a starting point for a real dialogue, and not for an equally clumsy answer in the form of a spoonful of pain.

Nils Christie, 1981
