Park for the public:

In Manhattan New York, the city image is the skyscraper. The city is famous for its building density, and there is not much open public park area. We are using the Central Park and the high line as an opportunity we are considering to make the UN site as a park open to the public in the sustainable view of the urban scale.

Theme: Patios inside and outside space