A BOTANICAL INSTITUTE

Botanists are looking to make a shift in their work. They change is unprecedented and will require a new approach. In the Netherlands, the Botanical Institute (NIEM) is preparing for the shift.

The institute plans to expand its facilities and increase its research capabilities.

The Netherlands and Europe are well known for their biodiversity and the Botanical Institute is eager to contribute to this. The expansion will include new green spaces that will serve as a laboratory for new types of research.

Amsterdam

A new botanical garden is planned for the city, adding to its natural beauty. The garden will feature rare and unique plants, offering a unique experience for visitors.

The institute will work closely with local communities to ensure the garden is accessible and beneficial to everyone.

Nieuwe Meer

The expansion of the Botanical Institute is also expected to have a positive impact on the local economy. It will attract more visitors, which will benefit local businesses.
