The exploration and the understanding of the way in which the city development is influenced by the corporate location and vice versa, is defined here as the problem. The understanding of this system leads to its optimization (proposal) that represents here the (possible) solution to the problem. The example that is used to explore and describe this relation is this of BNP Paribas and Paris.