The negative space is defined as a space that topics to the inner of the model. It is a space that is hard to define in a physical way. It is a place or space that is created through fear. Although fear is created through emotional, it is a distance within the space. Fear is an emotion that is not presented in the same way as in the same circumstances by every individual. In the sense negative space is a personal space with fear as a relating circumstances.

The negative space is created in part with an existing building. By the use of an existing building, the building is used as a point to create space. The building needed to create actual spatial relations are there to be accomplished.

The negative space is a personal space with an existing building. By the use of an existing building, the building is used as a point to create space. The building needed to create actual spatial relations are there to be accomplished

The adding of a second layer is a way to highlight, for example, the centre point of the courtroom.

The adding of a second layer is a way to highlight, for example, the centre point of the courtroom.

The adding of a second layer is a way to highlight, for example, the centre point of the courtroom.